Love God, Live Life - 7 Principles for a Victorious Christian Life in a Busy World

Alguns aspectos da poesia de Luiza Neto Jorge. The autonomy thesis tells us that religious utterances are only to be judged as justified or otherwise by the standards implicit in the religious form of life, and this may be further restricted to Christianity or Hinduism, or any other religion Malcolm The incommensurability thesis tells us that religious utterances are unlike scientific or metaphysical claims and so we are confusing different uses of language if we judge religious utterances by the standards of science or metaphysics Phillips Stress on the autonomy thesis brings Wittgensteinian fideism close to the fideism of many religious conservatives, but stress on the incommensurability thesis brings it close to the extreme liberal position of Braithwaite namely that religion is about attitudes not facts, which would, of course, be rejected by religious conservatives.
